Man's Unreasonableness

is often as great as woman's. But Thomas S. Austin, manager of the "Republican" of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick she could hardly leave her bed and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters she was perfectly cured and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy and Parlor Drug Store. Price 50c.

A Treat Next Week.

Lovers of the drama will be delighted to hear that the Manhattan Stock Company will open a week's engagement at Hale's Theatre Monday, November 27th. A full line of brilliant royalty plays will be presented. A powerfully written melodrama, by Frank Harvey, entitled, "Wicked London" will be Monday night's bill.

Special attention is given by Salinger & Branson, (the proprietors of the company), to the mounting of the various plays presented. A carload of special scenery, etc., is carried, and the smallest detail is carefully looked after. High-class singing and dancing specialties will be presented between the acts.

Miss Marguerite Hammond, the leading lady, has been secured as a special feature, at a large salary. She is recognized as one of the most natural actresses in the dramatic profession, and also one of the best gowned. Her costumes, which she wears in "East Lynne", and other plays, were imported from Worth the great Paris dressmaker and represent an outlay of over two thousand dollars.

The supporting company are all artists of recognized ability, and it can safely be said that a rare treat is in store for Barre theatre patrons next week.

Seats will be on sale at Harris' Book store Saturday morning.
Ladies' tickets for Monday night will be limited to one hundred.

Her manner of handling both light and heavy selections attracted the interest of all. Mr. Shadle, who has a marvelous bass voice, sang a number of beautiful solos. Among these numbers were "The Mission of a Rose," by Hawley; "Good Bye," by Tostoli; "In the Chimney Corner," by Cowen. Miss Bertha Chamberlain accompanied the solos for Mr. Shadle. The concert was given under the auspices of the Epworth League.

LIKE FINDING MONEY.

D. F. Davis, the popular druggist, is making an offer that is just like finding money. He is selling a regular 50-cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half-price. In addition to this large discount he agrees to return the money to any purchaser whom the specific does not cure.

It is quite unusual to be able to buy fifty-cent pieces for a quarter, but that is what this offer really means, for it is only recently, through the solicitation of Druggist Davis, that this medicine could be bought for less than fifty cents. He urged the proprietors to allow him to sell it at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified his good judgment, for the sale has been something remarkable.

Anyone who suffers with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness, sour stomach, specks before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity, for Dr. Howard's specific will cure all these troubles. But if by any chance it should not, D. F. Davis will return your money.

Report on Water May Not Be Ready.

It is not certain that the Brattleboro village water committee will be able to comply with the request of the board of health to have its report and that of the engineer engaged to survey available sources of supply printed and distributed to the voters in advance of the special village meeting December 1. The report is not yet complete and is not likely to be for several days as the committee wishes to include in the report the result of the analysis of samples of water now in the state laboratory of hygiene at Burlington. The appropriation made by the village to cover the expense of the committee's work has been used, but that would not stand in the way of having the report printed, the request of the health board being equivalent to authority to incur the additional expense.

Rates and Rate Inequalities.

In his Raleigh speech the president advanced no new argument in support of Federal control of railway rates. With characteristic vigor he pounded a recognized evil, for the suppression of which existing laws are only a little short of duly adequate. He made no allusion to the possible result of a stern and unflinching enforcement of laws already provided for the restraint of what he calls "unscrupulous and ruthless cunning in railway management," by which "some big shippers and some railroad managers who are always willing to take unfair advantage of their weaker competitors force other big shippers and big railroad men who would like to do decently into similar acts of wrong and injustice, under penalty of being left behind in the race for success."

This, which is the main line of the president's argument, does not seem to touch the principal issue of the present consideration, namely, the question of reasonable rates. Upon the issue of the equality of rates and treatment for all shippers, there is little room for argument. Shippers, railways and the public are in general agreement upon that point. With some elaboration of the present laws, to which little or no objection was raised, the point of unfair discrimination may be covered as well as it can be. It is doubtful if any such law could be made absolutely effective.

But that is an issue which is distinct from the proposal to place rate making powers in the hands of an administrative body. There appears to be confusion upon this point. There is a wide difference between the prohibition of any form of unfair discrimination between shipper and shipper, or between point and point, and the determination of rate charges by a federal commission. It is to the latter and not to the former that objection is made. Mr. Roosevelt said that "actual experience has shown that it is not possible to leave the railroads uncontrolled." I do not know the exact period of this actual experience. I am under an impression that railways are, and always have been, subject to a long list of restraining laws, statutory as well as economic.

Our transportation system has made this country what it is today. Our development has not come in spite of our system, but because of it. That abuses have crept into our government-controlled postal system and into our government-supervised and regulated banking system. But freedom of action in rate making has enabled railways to open enormous areas of otherwise valueless land, and to distribute the products of our farms and our workshops in a manner impossible under restrained action. The history of all state rate making shows the inevitable tendency of that method toward the flat distance tariff. Such a system in this country of enormous areas and distances would turn farms into waste places and valuable machinery into junk.

Nowhere in the entire range of the railway discussion has it been shown that the country has suffered or that it is suffering from excessive railway rates. Outside of individual instances, whose rarity makes them almost unique, there has been neither complaint of excessive charges nor clamor for reduction by a federal commission. The call for rate regulation by a commission or by a court does not come from our thousands of shippers. It is the cry of a few who hope to gain by it, augmented by the roaring of non-shippers who have little or no advantage of transportation questions.

The country, the shippers and even the railways will support the president in any effort to remedy evils, to correct abuses, to stamp out inequalities and unfair discriminations. But it is not the railway managers only who are staggered by proposals that a commission be empowered either to fix rates or to regulate railway traffic. SEARCHING FOR IT?

Some Barre Citizens Can Tell You Where It's Found

If you have any itching of the skin, Irritating Eczema, Itching Piles. You're looking for relief, Searching for a cure.

Barre people have found a cure for itching skin diseases.

They tell about it. Read what this citizen says.

F. S. Sandler (farmer) of West Topsham, says: "I was subject to itching hemorrhoids, commonly called piles, for a number of years despite the use of innumerable salves and ointments brought to my notice by friends and acquaintances and through the Barre newspapers and other sources of information. The malady, disease or complaint, term it what you will, was often bad enough in the winter, but in hot weather the itching and annoyance was unendurable. I heard of Doan's Ointment and got a box at E. A. Drown's drug store in Barre. When it effectually stopped such an old and chronic case as mine, which had resisted every effort on my part to check it, let alone cure, I have often wondered what this remedy would do in the incipient stages of that far too common annoyance, piles."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

of being careful in his statements—when such a man offers as an excuse for official conduct, charged to have been criminal, that "they paid me just like they paid others"—a public scandal of enormous dimensions is disclosed.

And it is a disclosure that calls loudly for all the facts—for the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

APPEAL FROM DECISION.

Legatees Under Will of Caroline Moulton Going to County Court.

Burlington, Nov. 23.—An appeal has been taken by the legatees under the will of the late Caroline Chase Moulton from the decision of Judge M. A. Bingham in probate court, whereby he held that George S. Edgell of New York, who was named in the will as executor, was eligible for appointment.

At a hearing Saturday some of the legatees, through their attorney, H. B. Shaw, objected to the appointment of Mr. Edgell because he was a non-resident and because he was a member of a banking concern, which was the fiscal agent of the decedent.

Judge Bingham held that the fact that Mr. Edgell was not a resident of Vermont had no weight and he also held that his connection with the Corbin Banking Co., did not disqualify him from serving. As soon as the decision was announced the appeal was taken and the matter will come up for trial at the March term of Chittenden county court.
